HON. JEANNETTE RANKIN
COMES OUT FOR ZIONISM

Whole World Should Help Jewish Race Realize Cultural Ideals, She Holds.

Hon. Jeannette Rankin, member of congress from Montana, has written an article which has been published in a recent issue of the "Maccabean," entitled, "Palestine for the Jews." A picture of Miss Rankin accompanies the write-up.

She takes the position that possession of Palestine by its hereditary owners, the Jews, is necessary to the untrammeled development of a Jewish culture and where "those Jews who desire, may go back to the land of their fathers, to live a free, unrestricted Jewish life, to speak Hebrew, to develop their own literature, their own educational and economic systems, and their own industrial and cultural institutions."

"And those Jews in every country in the world," she says, "who do not care to go back to Palestine, should nevertheless enjoy the consciousness that in Palestine they have a center of Jewish culture upon which they may rely for the development of the Jewish race."

Miss Rankin then points out that Palestine, as a gateway between eastern and western worlds, is susceptible to commercial exploitation.

"But Palestine," writes Miss Rankin, "must not be a project for financial exploitation. Like the other small nations whose rights are being flung, Palestine must stand free and independent, respected by the nations of the world for the intelligence and earnestness of its endeavor; and for the contributions it will make to the development of world civilization."

STUDENTS WILL DRINK
NO MORE SOFT DRINKS

(Special to The News.)
Johnson City, July 6.—Dean H. A. Morgan, of the University of Tennessee, federal food director for the state, gave an address July Fourth in the Normal school auditorium to the citizens of Johnson City and the faculty and student body of the State Normal school seated on the platform with Dean Morgan were Hon. Lee Miller, president of the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce; Hon. W. C. Mathes, secretary of the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce; Hon. C. W. Allen, food director of Greene county; Hon. James Epps, food director for Washington county; Hon. W. B. Ellison and President Sidney G. Gilbreath.

President Gilbreath, in introducing Dean Morgan, spoke of the great work Mr. Morgan had done and was doing to help win the war. He referred to him as one of the strong men of the nation.

Dean Morgan spoke of the "grave dangers threatening because of lack of insufficient production, neglect of conservation, failure in food economy and in food transportation." He showed the great importance of not only increasing our acreage, but also of increasing the quantity and quality produced. He insisted on the most careful conservation of all food supplies and the strictest observance of the food regulations as they related to sugar, fat, meat and flour. Dean Morgan classed as slackers all those who neglected to observe food regulations, and he insisted that every person should be engaged every day in some kind of war activity.

In speaking of the extreme necessity for conserving our sugar supply, he asked how many students of the Normal school would pledge themselves to refrain further from the use of soft drinks. Every member of the school faculty and students alike, were so pledged. Not only will they decline further to use soft drinks, but they will urge others to become members of the anti-soft drink club.

WHITFIELD'S ALLOTMENT HAS BEEN PLEDGED

(Special to The News.)
Dalton, Ga., July 6.—E. P. Davis, chairman of the Whitfield county war savings committee, has formally notified Hugh Richardson, state director, that Whitfield county's allotment of $239,400 in war savings stamps during 1918 had been pledged.

The final goal was reached on July Fourth, when, after getting within $12,000 of the amount needed, a few citizens met and agreed to take the remainder, obligating themselves to dispose of the stamps where they already had the limit. Several of the districts which failed to subscribe their allotments have since come in, and there will be more than the allotment taken in this county. There were upward of 100 who took the $1,000 limit here.

ALLIES TAKE LEAD IN THE LAST WEEK

Austrian Defeat and Successes in France Place Them in Advantageous Position.

(By Lieut.-Col. Repington.)
(Copyright, 1918, by New York World.)

London.—The last week has been wholly advantageous to the allies. The Austrian share in the decisive stroke has proved beyond the powers of the Austrian army, while on the French front the allies have made several important rectifications of their positions and have displayed great endurance and capacity in carrying out the attacks which were ordered in all theaters of the battle.

The Austrians admit the loss of 100,000 men and 12,000 prisoners. There is no reason to doubt the Italian estimate of 18,000 to 19,000 Austrian prisoners and a total of at least 150,000 Austrian losses. We must, therefore, conclude that the defeat of the Austrian attack has been not only complete, but expensive for the enemy.

The storming of Monte di Vi. Bella on June 29 shows that Gen. Diaz intends to make his position safe on the mountainside. The strategic position in Italy is no longer quite the same as it was in Gen. Cadorna's day. The whole Austrian army is now in the field. It has been beaten. Caporetto has been avenged and the recovery of the Italian people and army after their disappointment last autumn has been thorough.

But the Austrians are still strong, and, while they hold threatening positions in the mountains and on the Trentino, it is too soon for Italy to set out lightly upon the recovery of Venetia by direct assault. Gen. Diaz may first have other fish to fry. He has proved himself a capable and determined commander. He can be well content that he has caused the Austrian share in the 1918 offensive of the central powers to miscarry.

Germans Try to Deceive.

The Germans had been busy in France not only with preparations for their next move, but with practices intended to deceive us. They have been the constant marches and counter-marches of troops, the dispatch of great columns of dust-raising motor lorries in one direction or another by day and the lighting of bivouac fires on a vast scale by night, to induce us to believe in great concentrations of troops.

It remains true that we may expect an attack at any moment, but the hours and days mentioned by Premier Lloyd George more than a week ago have gone by and still the attack rages. Why? No one can say, or, rather, every one says differently. It is the simplest and most natural explanation that the German preparations are not completed.

These things take literally months to perfect, and when secrecy is considered the time factor is important, they take all the longer. It is also true that the Germans, according to the unanimous testimony of prisoners, are suffering from influenza rather badly, and that the German army, in particular, are affected. The Austrian defeat must also have created a disagreeable impression at German main headquarters, and that there are many other causes for German anxiety we are well aware.

Few Fears Americans Now.

Of these causes the rapid arrival of American troops is probably the most annoying.

If the Giornale d'Italia is right in believing the Germans had an advantage of 500,000 bayonets over the allies on March 21, and assuming that the losses on both sides have been approximately equal since, it is evident that the 600,000 American fighting troops, which American reports give as the present number in France, will have balanced the German advantage in March last and greatly changed the situation.

The problem before Ludendorff is to fight the greatest battle in history against approximately equal numbers and to accept huge losses without risking the prestige of Germany, on which so much depends.

But the situation has much changed since March 21, and it is a question whether German tactics will not change once more. The German limited offensives have been good, and it is possible Ludendorff may desire to continue them, but surprise was the essence of his plan, and his war and experience and its consequence, we, possibly, will make it less easy for the enemy to surprise us in the future.

It is possible that the enemy, feeling himself pressed for time, may pass on to a general attack in which all the front will be aflame, even if weight be thrown upon particular points. In this case the three or four-hour bombardment of the German limited surprise offensives may change into a bombardment of many hours or days' duration.

I should certainly suppose the German guns, and particularly the heavy ones, will be allotted a more leading role in the attack when the crisis comes, and that if indeed the infantry numbers tend to equalization, the German artillery will be more conspicuous than heretofore in the attack.

Calomel Users! Listen To Me!

I Guarantee Dodson's Liver Tone

Your druggist gives back your money if it doesn't liven your liver and bowels and straighten you up without making you sick.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not sallow or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste. Jo Anderson, druggist, Chattanooga, Tenn.—(Adv.)
